Dear [redacted]

My comments on the summer program are very few.

Without significant qualification, I found the summer program personally challenging and beneficial. The program's greatest asset - at least in my case - was the freedom it afforded me to follow my own peculiar intellectual bent. To the extent this freedom might be restricted re permanent employment, to that extent employment with the Agency would become less appealing & vis a vis other possible employers (universities, RAC, RAND, IDA).

It would be helpful if the recruiting process for summer interns was begun earlier in the year so we would not be notified in mid-May as to employment.

A program with as many positive features as ~~this~~ this one could attract a very large number of highly qualified applicants. The Agency might disseminate more information about the program to more universities.

Sincerely,
